The Economic Development Coalition of Southern California Wine Country would like to express our opposition to the proposed amended rules 1111 and 1121. These proposed changes would create an extraordinary burden on residents and businesses. Additionally, it would make it difficult for us to retain and attract new businesses, particularly manufacturing businesses and many of them rely on equipment that is either dependent on natural gas, or too expensive to operate with all electric. While protecting our environment and considering the impact on climate change is critical, it would be preferable to offer incentives and assistance with making the switch rather than a full requirement. Low-income households will find themselves going without heat or hot
